

Data

You have a right to complete access to your data, and the way it is handled on the Internet. You should be able to decide how and when to produce data, to share it, to export and import it, to control your data and to decide what's going to be done with it. Do you currently have this level of control over the information you need in your work online?

Freedom of Access

Discussions about the nature of the Internet often come back to the idea of Freedom of Access, though it means different things to different people. At May First/People Link, we believe that Freedom of Access is at the center of a progressive Internet agenda. Like everything else about the Internet, this discussion is developing every day online. This card covers some parts of the ideas that we think are important. What do you think?
